

COCI

Measurement of the Coupling Inductance of Connectors and Cables

Short description

In order to describe emission- and immunity features of connectors or cables, it is generally considered sufficient to determine their coupling inductivity. For the measurement the connectors are arranged and measured in a special measuring environment. The measurements are recorded by ChipScan-CI software. For an offer, please contact the sales department of Langer EMV-Technik GmbH.